The Compliance Function of the Company is responsible for developing and continuously updating the Conflict of Interest Policy, which should include:

- A record of services or activities that may give rise to detrimental conflicts of interest, and
- Specific procedures to be followed and the controls in place to monitor and manage those conflicts.

The following section describes the Conflict of Interest Policy, which can also be found as a stand-alone document.

2.1 Conflicts of Interest Policy

The purpose of the Conflict of Interest Policy of the Company is:

- To identify circumstances which constitute or may give rise to a conflict of interest entailing a material risk of damage to the interests of one or more clients,
- To specify procedures to be followed and measures to be adopted in order to manage such conflicts,
- To communicate this information to all those who are in the Company.

The policy includes arrangements designed to ensure that relevant persons, engaged in different business activities that may involve a conflict of interest, carry on those activities at a level of independence appropriate to the size and activities of the Company, and to the materiality of risk of damage to the interests of clients.

Where the Company is a member of a group, the policy shall also take into account any circumstances, of which the Company is or should be aware, which may give rise to a conflict of interest arising as a result of the structure and business activities of other members of the group.

The Company shall take all reasonable steps to identify conflicts of interest between:

- The Company (including its managers, employees or any person directly or indirectly linked to them by control), and a client of the Company, or
- One client of the Company and another client.

With the purpose of identifying the types of conflict that arise in the course of providing a service and where there may be a material risk of damage to the interests of a client, the Company must take into account whether the Company, or a relevant person, or a person directly or indirectly linked by control to the Company:

- a. Is likely to make a financial gain, or avoid a financial loss, at the expense of the client,
- b. Has an interest in the outcome of a service provided to the client or of a transaction carried out on behalf of the client, which is distinct from the client's interest in that outcome,
- c. May have a financial or other incentive to favour the interest of another client, or group of clients, over the interests of the client,
- d. Carries on the same business as the client does,
- e. Receives or may receive from a person, other than the client, an inducement in relation to a service provided to the client, in the form of monies, goods or services other than the standard commission or fee for that service.
- f. Obtain a financial gain or avoid a financial loss by increasing the sustainability risks of the portfolios arising greenwashing in processes, systems and controls in the framework of environmental (E), social (S) or governance (G) risks (collectively, "ESG") for portfolios as per SFDR Regulation.

The Compliance Function is responsible for ensuring that Directors and the personnel are aware of the aspects of the Policy relevant to them. In the day-to-day administration of the conflicts of interest policy the Compliance Function will work with line management to identify and eliminate such conflicts. The Conflicts of Interest Register (separate document) will be used to record both the conflicts arising and the arrangements for controlling/mitigating them. The more serious conflicts will be reported to the Board of Directors for consideration.

Set out below are typical situations in which conflicts of interest may arise. The list is not exhaustive and employees should only use it as guidance to identify and report conflicts.

a. Remuneration of Company:

A conflict of interest may arise when estimating the assets of each client to calculate management and performance fee to be paid to the Company. The Company will ensure that all investment holding valuations are conducted in accordance with the relevant valuation policy and where possible on an arms-length basis by an independent fund administrator or custodian of good reputation.

b. Inappropriate influence/ inappropriate simultaneous or sequential involvement:

A conflict of interest may arise when relevant persons that carry out investment or ancillary services or activities are inappropriately influenced over the way they perform their duties. Similarly a conflict of interest may arise when there is simultaneous or sequential involvement of a relevant person in separate investment or ancillary services or activities which may impair the proper management of potential conflicts of interest.

The Company has clear and defined roles and reporting lines to ensure an adequate degree of independence. The Company ensures proper supervision and control by the line managers, Compliance Function and Board of Directors to prevent and limit any person from exercising inappropriate influence and to prevent and control any excessive involvement in separate activities. All relevant persons have a duty to report immediately to their line manager and to the Compliance Function any attempt to exercise inappropriate influence.

c. Personal Transactions:

A conflict of interest may arise where an employee uses information acquired in the course of the Company's activities for dealings in his or her personal account. The Company will ensure that its personnel abide by the personal account dealing rules set out in this Manual and the relating policy (stand-alone document).

The Company provides regular reporting on personal account holdings in order to prevent possible conflicts of interest (see section 2.2 on personal transactions and the Personal Account Dealing Policy of the Company).

d. Personal Interest in Funds:

The Company will ensure no conflict of interest arises with the Fund(s) ensuring no personal interest of any employee/member of the Company prevails and/or has any negative consequences on the other investors in the Fund(s).

e. Inducements, fees, commissions, monetary and non-monetary benefits:

A conflict may arise where personnel receive inducements in connection with their services to the Company that can improperly influence their decisions. The Company takes reasonable steps to ensure that neither it nor its employees offer or give, or solicit or accept, in the course of business, any inducements which may lead to conflicts.

Due to the various relationships the Company may have with its clients and other entities, employees may not solicit gifts or gratuities nor give inducements, except in accordance with this Manual. The term “inducements” means gifts, entertainment and similar benefits which are offered to or given by employees. Gifts of an extraordinary or extravagant nature to an employee are to be declined or returned in order not to compromise the reputation of the employee or the Company. Gifts of nominal value or those that are customary in the industry, such as meals or entertainment may be appropriate. The Company prohibits any form of a loan by an employee to a client or by a client to an employee.

f. Investment Research:

A conflict may arise where analysts are not being objective and impartial when producing investment research. It is a fundamental responsibility of the Company to ensure that analysts producing research that is sent out to clients are free from the influence of conflicting business or personal interests in the production of research (see section 3.6).

g. Dealing, managing and allocating trades:

A conflict may arise when the Company aggregates orders for more than one client and there is need to allocate the executed trades to many different accounts. In such a case the Company will ensure that the allocation of trades to each portfolio is performed in a fair manner and independent of the specific portfolio manager.

h. Greenwashing and sustainable risks:

A conflict may arise when the company invests on behalf of the clients in any investments not fulfilling the investment restrictions as defined in the Company's Internal Procedures Manual or other documents or it makes misleading or exaggerated claims about the environmental benefits of its products or services.

If needed the Company will put in place a transparent policy for order allocation, which will define the way that allocations are performed on a pro rata basis. The policy will ensure that all clients achieve same average executed price.

The arrangements that are in place in order to manage conflicts are the following:

i. Governance:

- a. The Company has rigorous governance rules. Key business decisions are taken by the Board of Directors. The Compliance Function, working independently, reports directly to the Board of Directors,
- b. The Company has set out specific rules governing employee conduct in the standard employment terms and conditions, including rules regarding dealings in personal accounts, with the purpose of eliminate any possible conflict of interest,
- c. The Company has rigorous and clear reporting lines. An organisational chart is maintained by the Compliance Function.

ii. Conflict of Interest Register:

As a mechanism for identifying, managing, monitoring and mitigating conflicts of interest, the Compliance Function maintains a Conflicts of Interest Register. The Company keeps the register updated with the kinds of investment or ancillary service or investment activity carried out by or on behalf of the Company in which a conflict of interest entailing a material risk of damage to the interests of one or more clients has arisen or, in the case of an on-going service or activity, may arise. The register has also the purpose of identifying mitigating controls and responsibilities. All the persons involved in the activity of the Company must familiarise themselves with the contents of the Conflicts of Interest Register and with the terms of the Conflict of Interests Policy and apply them to their own activities within the Company.

iii. Segregation of functions:

Duties and functions are segregated as appropriate to avoid conflicts of interests and meet the relevant legislation requiring segregation of functions. These duties are set out by the individual job descriptions and procedure manuals. The line managers will ensure these duties remain segregated as advised by the Compliance Function.

iv. Remuneration of Personnel Policy:

The Company does not consider nor making any differentiation on employees' when considering sustainability risks where applicable.

In the future the Company might at the discretion of the Directors consider the use of remuneration incentives depending on positive or negative impacts on Environmental, Social and or Governance.

The level of remuneration of the personnel in the Company is fixed unless decided differently by the BOD. When decided to consist elements of variable dependent on company's actual performance the Company ensures that its interests and employee interests are aligned with those of the Company's clients. Risk management and control procedures are in place to avoid that too much risk may be taken with a client's portfolio in order to increase employees' personal gains. Further remuneration details can be found in the Company's Employment Manual and Appendix T of this Manual.

v. Disclosure of Personal Conflicts:

All employees and Directors are required to disclose any possible conflict of interest.

Employees are obliged to disclose any conflicts of interest to their line manager who in turn must inform the Compliance Function. Directors will disclose any conflicts directly to the Compliance Function. The Compliance Function will record any conflict of interest in the appropriate register and will inform the Board of Directors of any action taken.

vi. Disclosure to Clients:

If the Company's arrangements to manage a conflict of interest are judged not sufficient to prevent, with reasonable confidence, the risk of damage to a client's interests, the Company shall disclose to the client, of the type and source of the conflict in a durable medium and in sufficient detail to enable the client to make an informed decision with respect to the investment or ancillary service in the context of which the conflict of interest arises.

Over-reliance on disclosure of conflicts of interest shall be considered a deficiency in the Company's conflicts of interest policy.

Other systems and controls in place to identify, limit and mitigate possible conflicts of interests include:

Where the Company recommends or markets to its clients the services provided by another firm, shall aggregate the cost and charges of its services together with the cost and charges of the services provided by the other firm and shall take into account the costs and charges associated to the provision of other investment or ancillary services by other firms where it has directed the client to these other firms.

Fees, commissions or non-monetary benefits paid or provided by a person on behalf of the client should be allowed only as far as the person is aware that such payments have been made on that person's behalf and that the amount and frequency of any payment is agreed between the client and the Company and not determined by a third party.

The payment or benefit which enables or is necessary for the provision of investment services, such as custody costs, settlement and exchange fees, regulatory levies or legal fees, and which by its nature cannot give rise to conflicts with the Company's duties to act honestly, fairly and professionally in accordance with the best interests of its clients, is not subject to the requirements of this section.

Investment advice is provided explicitly to clients who have a signed agreement with the Company for the provision of this service. Investment advice is provided taking into consideration:

3.6.1 Provision of Independent investment advice

When offering independent investment advice services, the Company shall comply with the following obligations:

- a. The investment advisors shall assess a sufficient range of financial instruments available on the market which must be sufficiently diverse with regard to their type and issuers or product providers to ensure that the client's investment objectives can be suitably met and must not be limited to financial instruments issued or provided by:
 - i. The Company itself or by entities having close links with the Company, or
 - ii. Other entities with which the Company has such close legal or economic relationships, such as contractual relationships, as to pose a risk of impairing the independent basis of the advice provided,

- b. The investment advisors shall assess and compare a sufficient range of financial instruments available on the market so that:
- i. The number and variety of financial instruments considered is proportionate to the scope of investment advice services offered,
 - ii. The number and variety of financial instruments considered is adequately representative of financial instruments available on the market,
 - iii. The quantity of financial instruments issued by the Company itself or by entities closely linked to the Company itself is proportionate to the total amount of financial instruments considered, and
 - iv. Criteria for selecting the various financial instruments include all relevant aspects such as risks, costs and complexity as well as the characteristics of the Company's clients, and ensure that the selection of the instruments that may be recommended is not biased.

Where such a comparison is not possible due to the business model or the specific scope of the service provided, the Company shall not present itself as independent.

When providing the service of investment advice on an independent basis, fees, commissions or non-monetary benefits paid or provided by a person on behalf of the client should be allowed only as far as the person is aware that such payments have been made on that person's behalf and that the amount and frequency of any payment is agreed between the client and the Company and not determined by a third party.

Cases which would satisfy that requirement include where a client pays a firm's invoice directly or it is paid by an independent third party who has no connection with the Company regarding the investment service provided to the client and is acting only on the instructions of the client and cases where the client negotiates a fee for a service provided by a Company and pays that fee.

Where the investment advice is provided on an independent basis the Company shall not accept and retain fees, commissions or any monetary or non-monetary benefits paid or provided by any third party or a person acting on behalf of a third party in relation to the

The client should be accurately and periodically, informed about all fees, commissions and benefits the Company has received in connection with the investment service provided to the client and transferred to him.

Minor non- monetary benefits that are capable of enhancing the quality of service provided to a client and are of a scale and nature such that they could not be judged to impair compliance with the company's duty to act in the best interest of the client must be clearly disclosed prior to the provision of the relevant investment to the clients in a generic way and are excluded from this point.

The following benefits shall qualify as acceptable minor non-monetary benefits only if they are:

- b. written material from a third party that is commissioned and paid for by an corporate issuer or potential issuer to promote a new issuance by the company, or where the third party firm is contractually engaged and paid by the issuer to produce such material on an ongoing basis, provided that the relationship is clearly disclosed in the material and that the material is made available at the same time to any IFs wishing to receive it or to the general public,
- c. participation in conferences, seminars and other training events on the benefits and features of a specific financial instrument or an investment service,
- d. hospitality of a reasonable de minimis value, such as food and drink during a business meeting or a conference, seminar or other training events mentioned under point (c), and

- e. other minor non-monetary benefits which a Member States deems capable of enhancing the quality of service provided to a client and, having regard to the total level of benefits provided by one entity or group of entities, are of a scale and nature that are unlikely to impair compliance with an IF's duty to act in the best interest of the client.

Acceptable minor non-monetary benefits shall be reasonable and proportionate and of such a scale that they are unlikely to influence the Company's behavior in any way that is detrimental to the interests of the relevant client.

3.6.2 Provision of Independent investment advice focused on certain categories

When the Company provides investment advice on an independent basis which is focused on certain categories or a specified range of financial instruments it comply with the following requirements:

- b. The Company shall require clients to indicate that they are only interested in investing in the specified category or range of financial instruments, and
- c. Prior to the provision of the service, the Company shall ensure that its service is appropriate for each new client on the basis that its business model matches the client's needs and objectives, and the range of financial instruments that are suitable for the client.

Where this is not the case the Company shall not provide such a service to the client.

3.6.3 Provision of both independent and not-independent investment advice

When the Company is offering both independent and not-independent investment advice, following obligations shall apply:

- a. In good time before the provision of its services, the company shall inform the client, in a durable medium, whether the advice will be independent or non-independent to ensure that clients are not likely to be confused about the type of advice they are receiving and that they are given the type of advice that is appropriate for them,
- b. The company shall ensure that both types of advice services and advisers providing them are clearly separated from each other; the Company shall not allow a natural person to provide both independent and non-independent advice.

3.6.4 Qualifications for the provision of the Investment Advice Service

Where a member of staff has not acquired the appropriate qualification or the appropriate experience to provide the relevant services or both, this staff member can only provide the relevant services under the supervision of a person holding appropriate qualification and knowledge (Competent Supervisor). The level and intensity of supervision should reflect the relevant qualification and experience of the staff member being supervised and this could include, where appropriate, supervision during clients meeting and other forms of communication such as telephone calls and e-mails.

In such a case the supervisor will take the responsibility for the provision of the relevant services when the staff member under supervision is providing relevant services to a client, as if the supervisor is providing the relevant services to the client, including signing-off the suitability report where advice is being provided.

The person that provides the services under supervision cannot provide those relevant services for a period exceeding 4 years or any other period defined by the regulator unless within the timeframe is assessed as competent by the Company, fulfils requirements as stated above and his/her name appear on the list of authorised/competent persons circulated by the Company. - g. whether the company will provide the client with a periodic assessment of the suitability of the financial instruments recommended to that client.
- h. The fact that the company does not take into consideration any sustainability risks on the investment decision procedure neither its negative impacts.

Where any of the information contains an indication of past performance of a financial instrument, a financial index or an investment service, the company shall ensure that the following conditions are satisfied:

- a. where the indication relies on figures denominated in a currency other than that of the Member State in which the retail client or potential retail client is resident, the currency is clearly stated, together with a warning that the return may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations,

3.6.8 Suitability report

When providing investment advice regardless of whether or not the advice is followed by a transaction and irrespective of the specific recommendation given, including the advice not to buy, hold or sell a financial instrument., the investment advisors shall, before the transaction is made, provide the client with a statement on suitability in a durable medium specifying the advice given and how that advice meets the preferences, objectives and other characteristics of the retail client called suitability report.

- a. The client has consented to receiving the suitability statement, without undue delay, after the conclusion of the transaction, and

- b. The investment advisors have given the client the option of delaying the transaction in order to receive the statement on suitability in advance.

In determining when the suitability report is provided to clients, the investment advisors should take into account, having regard to the urgency of the situation, the client's need for sufficient time to read and understand it before taking an investment decision.

A client is likely to require more time to review information given on a complex or unfamiliar product or service, or a product or service a client has no experience with than a client considering a simpler or more familiar product or service, or where the client has relevant prior experience.

"Inside information" means information of a precise nature which has not been made public, relating, directly or indirectly, to one or more issuers (i.e. persons who issue one or more financial instruments) or to one or more financial instruments, including information regarding any takeover offer for a company, and which, if it were made public, would be likely to have a significant effect on the prices of those financial instruments or on the price of related derivative financial instruments; being information which a reasonable investor would be likely to use as part of the basis of his investment decisions.

For the purposes of this definition, information shall be deemed to be of a precise nature if it indicates a set of circumstances which exists or may reasonably be expected to come into existence or an event which has occurred or may reasonably be expected to do so and if it is specific enough to enable a conclusion to be drawn as to the possible effect of that set of circumstances or event on the prices of financial instruments or related derivative financial instruments; for persons charged with the execution of orders concerning financial instruments, inside information shall also mean information conveyed by a client and related to the client's pending orders, which is of a precise nature, which relates directly or indirectly to one or more issuer or to one or more financial instruments, and which, if it were made public, would be likely to have a significant effect on the prices of those financial instruments or on the price of related derivative financial instruments; being information which a reasonable investor would be likely to use as part of the basis of his investment decisions.

No person shall use inside information to trade in any financial instrument admitted to a regulated market or in any other way to acquire or dispose of, or attempt to acquire or dispose of such financial instrument, whether for his own account or for the account of a third party, either directly or indirectly, if he/she is in possession of information related to such financial instrument by virtue of:

- a. His/her membership of the administrative, management or supervisory bodies of the issuer,
- b. His/her holding in the capital of the issuer,
- c. His/her having access to the information through the exercise of his employment, profession or duties, or
- d. His/her criminal activities.

Any person who possesses inside information by virtue of any of the reasons listed in (a) to (d) above shall be prohibited from:

A regulated market is manipulated by disseminating false, exaggerated or misleading information, spreading false rumours, or putting into effect simulated or artificial operations or transactions or orders.

A person shall be deemed to have committed market manipulation if he is responsible for transactions or orders to trade:

- i. Which give, or are likely to give, false or misleading signals as to the supply of, demand for or price of financial instruments, or
- ii. Which secure, by a person, or persons acting in collaboration, the price of one or several financial instruments at an abnormal or artificial level: Provided that no market manipulation shall be deemed to have been committed where the person who entered into the transactions or issued the orders to trade establishes that his reasons for so doing are legitimate and that these transactions or orders to trade conform to accepted market practices on the regulated market concerned,

Without prejudice to the generality of the points above, the following conduct shall be deemed to amount to market manipulation:

- a. conduct by a person, or persons acting in collaboration, to secure a dominant position over the supply of or demand for a financial instrument which has the effect of fixing, directly or indirectly, purchase or sale prices or creating other unfair trading conditions,
- b. the buying or selling of financial instruments at the close of the market with the effect of misleading investors acting on the basis of closing prices,
- c. taking advantage of occasional or regular access to the traditional or electronic media by voicing an opinion about a financial instrument, or indirectly about its issuer, while having previously taken positions on that financial instrument and profiting subsequently from the impact of the opinions voiced on the price of that instrument, without having simultaneously disclosed that conflict of interest to the public in a proper and effective way, or

- d. engaging in any activity so as to otherwise manipulate the financial instruments market by the employment of artificial devices, fictitious transaction or other deceptive or manipulative conduct including new patterns of activity which may arise from time to time that in practice constitute market manipulation.

In the case of doubt as to whether particular conduct constitutes Market Abuse, the Compliance Officer should be consulted prior to dealing.

APPENDIX C - The Company's Business Continuity Plan (BCP)

This business continuity plan outlines the measures taken to mitigate the risk of Significant Business Disruption (SBD) to the Company and the course of action for resuming normal operations, in case such an event occurs.

The main objective of the BCP is to outline the procedures for:

- Safeguarding members' of staff and Company property,
- Recovering and resuming normal operations as quickly as possible,

1. Preventive Measures Taken to Mitigate the threat of SBDs

There are two kinds of SBDs that may affect the Company:

- Internal: affect only the Company's ability to do business and communicate , such as a fire in the offices , computer crime or a major system breakdown,
- External: prevent the operation of the markets or a number of counterparties, such as a terrorist attack, earthquake, flood, flu epidemic or a wide-scale, regional disruption.

The Company relies heavily on IT systems and thus the main preventive measure taken to mitigate risk is the regular backup of all important electronic data and files. All Company data, files and e-mails are stored on-line. All data and programs can safely and quickly be restored remotely from any location in the event of a failure.

The main SBD events and measures taken to mitigate risk are:

a. Fire

In order to prevent and react to a fire a number of measures have been taken:

- The building is equipped with a fire alarm system and hand-held fire extinguishers,
- Detailed instructions for dealing with fire are present in the Fire Alarm Plan documentation,
- Staff is required to undergo training and demonstrate proficiency in periodic, unscheduled fire drills.

b. Computer Crime

Computer crime is a main threat for a Company that relies heavily on IT systems. The main countermeasures to prevent and react to computer crime events are:

- All systems are protected by a firewall and up to date antivirus,
- All systems are protected by username and passwords and all users are required to change their passwords on a regular basis. Invalid access attempts to systems will be monitored through systems logs,
- All systems are backed up on a daily basis. Critical data backups are kept off site.

c. Theft

All files and laptops are locked away at the end of each day. All visitors are signed both in and out of the building. The building has alarm/security systems.

d. External event: Terrorist attack, Earthquake, Flood, Flu epidemic, etc

There can be no preventative measures for such extreme events. In case such a disaster occurs, the members of the Board of Director, after communicating with the relevant government body (police, fire department, civil defence etc) will determine if it is safe to conduct the business from the usual Company's office. If this is deemed unsafe, operations will be resumed from the house of one of the directors after installing the backup from the off-site location. All directors are aware of the procedure to access the off-site online backup.

In case of epidemic situation the Board of Directors will define to the employees if unsafe to work from office facilities and the period they have to work from home. To make this possible the Company has established online backups of all documents/folders needed on its on line drive and the employees have limited access to these folders in accordance with their job position and seniority.

All reporting will be taking place via email or telephone calls and if any additional information or clarification is required their contact person shall be the Heads of the Departments.

The business main telephone numbers shall be redirected to the mobile phone of the secretary which will be responsible to redirect the telephone calls to the mobile phones of the appropriate employees/seniors /Directors.

Also in case of epidemic situations all social activities of the Company or any meetings shall be restricted if such is considered necessary by the Board of Directors.

If the Board of Directors decide not to fully close the offices of the company but to work only with limited number of employees the number shall not exceed the 20% of the Company's personnel.

2. Procedure following a SBD

Immediately following a SBD, a planned sequence of events begins:

a. Coordination of the BCP

The person responsible (PER) for putting the BCP in action is: Andreas Karavias. In case the PER is not available, the most senior member of the management / Board of Directors available will put the BCP into operation.

b. Recovery procedure

The PER will oversee the following sequence of recovery operations:

- If the Company's office is accessible, protect and preserve computer equipment. Remove all storage media (hard drives, CDs, memory sticks) to a safe place away from the disaster site,
- Survey the office and estimate the personnel, material and amount of time required to put it back into working order,
- Start repairing and rebuilding the site as soon as it is deemed safe,
- Assess whether to resume operations from alternative offices if the damage is severe,
- Place orders as soon as possible for new equipment if resources/material cannot be salvaged,
- Assemble salvaged and new components,
- Perform data recovery procedures:
 - Recall backup data from off-site storage,
 - Give priority to restore the operating systems for each terminal/computer,
 - Next, restore data and programs needed for the Company to resume normal operations.

c. Communication with third parties

In the event of an SBD, the PER will ensure that the Company can as soon as possible establish communications with the relevant stakeholders and third parties, including employees, investors, service providers and regulators. The mean of communication will depend on the SBD and will include fax, phone, e-mail, letter and courier.

3. Training of Staff

All employees, members of the management and the Board of Directors will be informed of their duties in case of a SBD. At least on an annual basis, the Company will test its ability to restore systems from the off-site online backup. A copy of the BCP will be kept at any time at the Company's registered offices.
